Editorial

A NEW HISTORICAL MARKER HERE

The Times-Virginian is so elated at any concrete steps towards adding to the reality of historical association at Appomattox, that we hasten to applaud any move in that direction. Therefore, we take pleasure in commending the efforts of the Robert Edward Lee chapter of U. D. C., in planning to place a handsome bronze marker at the site of the farewell address of General Lee.

When a sufficient number of such markers and carefully prepared exhibits are ready for the visiting public to view at and near Appomattox, then a campaign of tapping the vast and lucrative tourist industry (George Peery says the tourist trade is a $50,000,000 a year industry in Virginia) can be undertaken. The day will come when Appomattox will be mentioned in the same directory to Virginia show-places as Yorktown, Jamestown and Wakefield . . . notwithstanding the recent inexcusable omission of Appomattox in a voluminous treatise on Virginia shrines by his eminency William E. Carson. We admire the spirit of the U. D. C. ladies in seeking to honor and chronicle the site of Lee's Farewell Address. It was the swan song of a great people and an epic period in world history. The only shame is that we let the spot go so long unnoticed.

HARVEST IT CAREFULLY

Driving over this and adjoining counties, the writer has seen a great number of new tobacco barns. This and other evidence shows that our farmers are earnestly attempting to add quality to their offerings on the market. The season has, on the whole, been good. The price will depend greatly upon the quality offered, and as matters stand at this stage, it is believed that the average total money received by our tobacco farmers this year will be greater than last year. The demand is for quality and buyers will be inclined to bolster prices of their own accord rather than face the strong arm of Uncle Sam in forcing a fair price.

A GOOD MARKET

On a recent Saturday this editor visited the new city market in the nearby city of Lynchburg. It was an enlightening and pleasant visit. We noticed a good number of Appomattox farmers on hand with their fresh produce and we are lead to the conclusion that many of our farmers are finding an excellent outlet for their garden and field produce there. The wise farmer seeks every means possible to add to his livelihood and we suggest the continued support of the nearby city market will pay dividends.

SAFE LIVING

It is said that a certain Colorado newspaper in writing up any accident or disaster occurring anywhere in the world, prefaces it with "It's a great place to live in Colorado." It is a great place to live in Virginia and other eastern waterfronts, we comment. "It is great to live in Appomattox," we say with many difficulties, but how great it is, only those who have a prevalent nature visit our lands will appreciate. Summer and gentle seasons and easing our life and property fears—more than the average area, it is "great to live in Appomattox."

REVIVAL DAYS

During the season of revival meetings throughout the rural sections of this and adjoining counties the writer has attended revivals in many churches and denominations, and one pastor commented that he had been attending revivals for thirty-seven days in a row.

It is often said that the rural population of our nation is nearer to God and ethical reality than the urban people. It is also known fact that temperance is at flood tide in the rural section, and there gangsterism is an unknown article. We mean no improper reflection upon the consciences, ethics or emotions of country friends, but may we make the observation that our nation would be much better off, if instead of "codes" and 'NRA', Century of Progress and crooners, world series and stock exchange, our president set aside a week to be know as "National Revival Week."

NRA Drive Wins Support

With the Blue Eagle drive daily gaining momentum in every part of the country, there is mounting evidence that the nation soon will be enlisted 100 percent behind this new American bird. Reports reaching here from Washington today gave a stirring picture of a campaign for re-employment that is unique in the annals of this or any other country. According to these reports approximately 6,000 communities are now organized with a militant crew of volunteer workers who are going the limit of their ability to make possible the objectives of President Roosevelt and National Recovery Administrator Johnson, which is 5,000,000 more men and women on the payrolls of the nation by Labor Day. And to this volunteer army, thousands of recruits are being added daily as new communities by the hundreds take up the work.

The campaign, so it is pointed out, is the sheer speed with which these mighty strides have been attained. It is literally a matter of days since the Blue Eagle first was thrust across the American horizon. Less than 30 days ago, General Johnson sent out a message to the heads of commercial organizations in all parts of the country asking them to take the initiative in forming militant Blue Eagle organizations in their respective communities. This was the beginning of the campaign. In less than 24 hours thereafter wires, phone calls, and letters began a bombardment that has never ceased. It has been a bombardment of enlistment. Through all the thousands of messages that have been pouring into Washington, this has been the theme of all: "We're ready to go. Tell us what to do."

It is not going too far to say that all America has enlisted behind the Blue Eagle. For example, every motion picture theatre in America in this week showing a 'trailor' to the news reels. It starts off with a vigorous Uncle Sam pointing an uncompromising index finger at the audience with the words, "Uncle Sam Wants You." And then the whole picture is of a nature calculated to stir the saddiness to the heights of patriotic ardor. Then there are countless movie-tones, and next week will see the beginning of a series of NRA dramas in which all the big stars in Hollywood will take part. Never before in the history of the silver screen has there been such a solidarity of endeavor to bring about a cause. The radio, too has surrendered quite completely to the Blue Eagle. It is not easy to tune in anywhere today and not hear some message of exhortation in behalf of the bird that has been clamped on a nation's consciousness as the insignia of happy days. Great programs on the air are soon to come. Such nation-wide favorites as Al Smith and Will Rogers will soon take to the mike in behalf of the great drive against unemployment. Schumann Heink, she, too, is effectively during the war, was enlisted again, and George M. Cohan has written a martial air that will be the peace-time counter part of his immortal "Over There." Countless other radio and theatrical stars have joined up with the great movement. Of course, the newspapers have fallen in line just as they did with such patriotic loyalty in the days of 1917 and 1918. And everywhere in theatres and at all public gatherings speeches are being given by NRA "Minute Men."

In the NRA offices in Washington, executives for days have been literally swamped with correspondence, thus showing the tremendous public reaction. It has not been possible even for the great facilities of the U. S. Government to deliver consumer's cards, stickers, NRA insignia and other supplies and paraphernalia as rapidly as the public has demanded them. Recently a fleet of 24 airplanes sailed from New York to the North, West and South loaded to capacity with campaign supplies but still the demand was unsatisfied. However, officials in Washington promise that all demands will be met and that if organizations will exercise just a little patience all the required literature and insignia will reach them before the culminating week of effort which will begin next Monday.

The task so far has been to shape up the local organizations. By next Monday it is expected that all this will have been completed and then the army will be ready to march.

And the army, according to Washington advices, today, will be kept on the march until all America yields to the Blue Eagle. Which is just another way of saying—Until the back of the depression has been broken.

senate as a special order and in all probability will be submitted to the governor tomorrow. It carries an emergency and becomes effective within five days after the governor's approval.

"While this bill is considered a revenue measure, the subject has been dealt with from a liberal viewpoint so as to make 3.2 beer declared by the bill to be non-intoxicating), available to the consuming public throughout the state.

"Today the house is considering such legislation as may be necessary to insure a minimum eight months term for the public schools in all the counties. Yesterday the supplemental message was received from the governor containing suggestions for legislation on Virginia's part to meet the national recovery program. Nothing had been heard on this topic until yesterday and it is doubtful to what extent the legislature will go into the subject.

"The Shumate resolution, calling for the creation of a commission to redistrict the state for congressional, senate and house districts, seems a useless procedure. The two standing committees of the house and senate possess all the information necessary for action in this subject and are in position to effect redistricting without either the expense or delay occasioned by the creation of such a commission.

"I now revise my opinion, previously expressed, as to the length of the present session, and feel that its work should be completed by the first of September."

Defends Combs

Richmond, Aug. 28.—Under a caption of, "Hair-splitting Makes for Disruption" the Commerce and Industry Magazine, of New York, in its current issue publishes a handsome tribute to the ability and efficiency of state Comptroller Combs. The New York publication regrets that Mr. Combs should have recently been subjected to attack for political purposes. In its editorial section the magazine says:

"This is no time for petty quibbling. This goes for politics as well as for industry. This is a time for complete and wide-spread cooperation between men and organizations. A vast task of reconstruction faces all of us, requiring concentrated effort. Personal and party prejudices must be set aside. This is as true of the internal workings of our governmental bodies as it is of the industry of the nation.

"The political and personal attacks against the Comptroller of the State of Virginia, E. R. Combs, is a case in point of avoidable controversy. This is particularly true when one considers the fact that these allegations placed against a responsible and able official are designed primarily to embarrass the functions of that office. Citizens of the 'Dominion state' know full well the meaning of having a man of Mr. Combs' quality and integrity in office. They also know that charges against him are unwarranted.

Reported retail sales of the Oldsmobile for the first 20 days of August exceed by 20 per cent the total retail deliveries for the entire month of August, 1932, it was stated today by Sales Manager, R. M. W. Shaw.
"Every indication points to this month as the best August Oldsmobile has enjoyed since 1929," said Mr. Shaw.
"National reported sales for Oldsmobile-Chevrolet agency this year until now they stand more than 6000 units ahead of this date last year and exceed the entire Oldsmobile sales total for the full 12 months of 1932."

Calls For Consumer Support

The NRA plan is designed to put five million men back on payrolls in a short time.

When this done, 20,000,000 people (assuming four to each wage earner's family) will suddenly be placed in position to buy the normal necessities of life. That means that the total trade volume of the nation will upon the complete acceptance of this plan be lifted by from 10 to 20 percent.

Appomattox will have a definite share in this increased prosperity to the extent that it participates in the plan, so there is a responsibility on every citizen here to cooperate to the utmost to make this gigantic national plan a complete success. Every employer and every consumer has a definite responsibility to assume.

The Employer's Responsibility:
NRA calls upon every employer to shorten hours of labor, so as to make room for more employees.

Each industry will before long adopt its own code which will fix the increased labor obligations to be assumed by all firms associated with that particular industry. Until that time all employers are asked to sign the President's Agreement and to meet the hours and wages established in that Agreement. This Agreement is sometimes referred to as the Blanket Code.

The success of NRA therefore calls for the cooperation of Every Employer.

It is to the Employers self-interest to do this. Why? Because more people working, with bigger payrolls, will increase the market for his goods Every dollar spent by an Employer now for increased payroll will return many fold as business flows from a consuming public, once more able to buy to supply its unfilled needs.

So Every Employer Should Sign the President's Agreement at Once.

The Consumer's Responsibility:
Every individual, man and woman, who buys anything, owes it to himself and his community and to the nation, to buy only from those Employers who have taken the increased burden of increasing payrolls t obring back prosperity. This is also the self-interest of the consumer because no citizen can fall to share in this added prosperity. It will reflect itself in increased values for everything he owns. It will make his present position more secure by reversing the process of deflation.

So Every Consumer Should Sign the Consumer's Pledge, which commits him to do his part in this great national economic experiment.

The duty of every citizen of Appomattox is therefore plain. The President has said: "On the basis of this simple principle of everybody doing things together, we are starting out on this Nation-wide attack on unemployment. It will succeed if our people understand it—if the big industries, in the little shops, in the great cities and in the small villages. There is nothing complicated about it and there is nothing particularly new in the principle. It goes back to the basic idea of society and of the Nation itself that people acting in a group can accomplish things which no individual acting alone could even hope to bring about."

Appomattox must do its part in this great plan. It has never failed when the nation called and it will not fail now.

H. M. BURGE,
Chairman NRA Committee.
